Londinium: A Digger's Eye View of Roman London

In 43 AD, the Romans founded the city of Londinium in the marshy Thames Valley. The city survived fire and rebellion and grew from a small trading port to the provincial capitol of Britain with up to 60,000 residents.

Former Glencoe resident Ellen Green returns to explore what day-to-day life would have been like in Londinium and how archaeologists are able to reconstruct the urban landscape from what was left behind. In particular she will discuss discoveries made on recent digs she participated in, including the Harper Road sarcophagus (the first of its kind found in 18 years and one of only three ever found in London) and a series of Roman workshops unearthed next to the city wall.

Ms. Green has worked as an archaeologist in Transylvania, York, Durham, and London. Currently a field archaeologist for Pre-Construct Archaeology, she has a BA in archaeology and ancient civilizations and a MSc in paleopathology from the University of Durham, and specializes in human remains. She is firmly of the belief that nothing is better than a day spent down a hole, covered in mud, looking for interesting things.

PENGUIN CLASSICS

CHARLES DICKENS

Bleak House

BIG BOOKS: BLEAK HOUSE

Thursdays at 7:00 p.m., September 13–November 8

Critics widely praised Charles Dickens's complex novel, Bleak House, which at its core dramatizes basic human conflicts that people throughout time encounter. The story centers around the monumental, never-ending, and literally life-consuming court case of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce, which gives Dickens license to satirize the convoluted English legal system. A huge cast of distinctive characters—Esther Summerson, a ward of court, whose parentage is a source of deepening mystery; the menacing lawyer Tulkinghorn; the determined sleuth Inspector Bucket; Jo, the destitute little crossing-sweeper; the tragic Lady Dedlock—populate the fierce yet often comic novel from the London slums to the grand country estates.

Join us for a nine-week dive into what many consider Dickens's greatest novel! Leading this fall's Big Books discussion will be Holly Marihugh, who has guided discussions of literary fiction for seven years. In 2014–15, she blogged about people living and working in Winnetka and published a book of those posts under the title Winnetka60093.

The Big Books discussion series is sponsored by the Friends of the Glencoe Public Library. Registration is required, and space is limited. Glencoe residents will get priority if the class fills up. Registration opens September 1; visit the library's website or call to register.

Ms. Petersen is the editor of the AIA Guide to Chicago, which features over 1800 buildings in the city.

THE RIDER

Based on a true story, The Rider is a genuine 21st-century western. Back in South Dakota after a fateful accident, a former rodeo rider must determine how to proceed with his life without the work by which he has defined himself. Director Chloe Zhao's masterful use of untrained actors only adds to the authenticity and emotional impact of The Rider, a recipient of universally high marks from critics.

LEAVE NO TRACE

Monday, November 19, at 1:00 & 7:00 p.m.

Director Debra Granik (Winter's Bone) delivers one of the year's best films in a story about a father and daughter living on the margins of society in the Pacific Northwest. The parent and child exist peacefully in forested public lands outside Portland until they are captured by authorities. If they are to stay together, they must adapt to a more conventional way of living, a situation with which the child may be better prepared than the parent. Ben Foster is typically compelling as the father, while relative newcomer Thomasin Harcourt McKenzie is a wonder as the singular, bright-eyed daughter.

Meet the Staff

JULIAN WOLFE

Hello everyone! I'm originally from Canada. I grew up in Calgary, a city that is just east of the Rocky Mountains. I started working here at the Glencoe Public Library last fall and have been enjoying my time getting to know the staff and patrons.

Here's some history. After graduating from high school, I took the opportunity to do some traveling in Israel, Turkey, and Thailand. Afterward, I spent a season planting trees back in Canada until I had enough money to travel back to Asia. I ended up living in Thailand for about 13 years. Somehow I managed to learn only a little Thai! The highlight of my time there was being exposed to some of the meditation and contemplative practices found in that part of the world. I continue to have an interest in meditation, consciousness, and the psychological value and healing potential of non-ordinary states of awareness. Presently I am going to Oakton Community College with the thought of eventually getting a degree in psychology and becoming a therapist.

Except in the winter, I like leisurely bike rides up and down Old Green Bay Road. I try not to be busy in my life, a skill I have yet to perfect. I am not very knowledgeable about titles and authors, but I like people so that's why I'm at the front desk!

Ms. Goddard holds a doctorate in American studies and U.S. history and a master’s degree in theater and is the author of two books on Chicago history.
